DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 06/23/2008 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 28-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fletcher (U.S. Patent No. 5,382,249).

Claims 28-29: Fletcher discloses a housing having a body and a head 58 that extends forward from said body, said head having a face and a through bore (Figure 7), a driver having a driven portion disposed in said housing and configured to be attached to a drive unit and a locking portion disposed over said face of said head said locking portion having a through opening aligned with said through bore, and at least one engaging member 52, a pin 62 that extends through said through bore and said through opening said pin having a head portion disposed over said locking portion with said head portion defining an opening therethrough that is aligned over and positioned to receive said at least one engaging member, said pin being movably mounted to said housing so as to be able to move longitudinally in said through bore and said through opening, a cap mounted to said pin so as to be spaced above said head portion of said pin to define a slot of a fixed height between said head portion and said cap for receiving a surgical saw blade, said slot being movable with said pin, and a biasing member acting between said head of said housing and said pin for urging engagement between said head portion of said pin and said cap and at least one engaging member (Figure 8). Said cap has a bottom face directed towards said head portion and at least one bore that opens inwardly from said bottom face, said at least one bore being aligned with said at least one engaging member and said opening in said head portion of said pin and dimensioned to receive said at least one engaging member, and said driver, said pin and said cap are collectively dimensioned so that said engaging member extends through said opening and said slot into said bore defined in said cap.

Fletcher does not expressly disclose the engaging member as part of the locking portion of the driver, and the biasing member urging said head portion of said pin and said cap towards said at least one engaging member. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time of invention to modify Fletcher by attaching the engagement member to the driver since it has been held that forming in one piece an article which has been formerly been formed in two pieces and put together involves only routine skill in the art, and would ensure more a unified locking mechanism. Also, in Fletcher the biasing member urges the engaging member towards the head portion of the pin and the cap, which is opposite of the recitation of the biasing member urging said head portion of said pin and said cap towards said at least one engaging member.

Again, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Fletcher by making the head portion of the pin and the cap movable and capable of being urged by the biasing member relative to the engaging member, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art
